

Making sense of it all

Everything connected

Exizent is THE industry platform for professionals involved with managing the bereavement process. When someone passes away, Exizent connects the data and services used by legal services firm, institutions and executors to sort out what's required to make the journey for the bereaved an easier one. The Exizent platform is an integral part of the bereavement landscape helping to reduce uncertainty, increase speed and overall, make the process more straight forward for everyone.

It's a business inspired by powerful stories, stories of people who have lost loved ones that have then found themselves caught in a web of complexity at a time of personal anguish. We don't believe it has to be this way. By connecting the professionals, institutions and executors tasked with sorting out the administration involved when someone passes away Exizent is reducing the burden on those grieving.

For legal services

Exizent gives legal professionals the tools to tackle bereavement cases more efficiently by making sure they can always see the bigger picture. Whether that's providing the visibility to avoid delays up ahead, the technology to work more effectively or the reassurance of knowing where they are with their cases, the Exizent platform helps makes sense of it all.

For institutions

From banks and insurers to HMRC and local utility suppliers — Exizent makes things clearer from the start, creating a network of information that keeps everyone involved on the same path. The platform removes any guesswork and prioritises consistency, raising efficiency and filtering out risk to speed up the whole process.

Our founders

The company was founded by former financial services veteran Nick Cousins and transformation and technology leader Aleks Tomczyk. Their own personal experiences of bereavement have led them to establish Exizent, believing the administrative tasks facing families after the death of a loved one should be far easier than they are today.

Both have track records of building successful products and businesses. Nick was previously Chief Product Owner of Barclays Wealth and Investments division. Aleks was the former founder and CEO of boutique consultancy Arum.

Our investors

The business secured £3.6 million in seed funding from FNZ, the global fintech firm based in Edinburgh which reached unicorn status in 2018.

Exizent operates throughout the UK and is headquartered in Glasgow.

Get in touch

For press, events, awards, speaking, or sponsorship opportunities email us at press@exizent.com